

Please stop confusing the freedom for large media corporations to get even larger with the freedom fundamental to a democratic society. The decisions you make, and the way those decisions are made, are so inimical to the principles of democracy it makes me want to scream. If only I had access to a giant media conglomerate so that people could actually hear me...

I apologize for my confrontational tone, but I am reassured by the thought that this attempt on the part of the FCC at openness to public input is just showbusiness. I hope I am wrong. I promise that I am a thoughtful person who cares deeply about the state of public communication in our country, and I am not alone.
